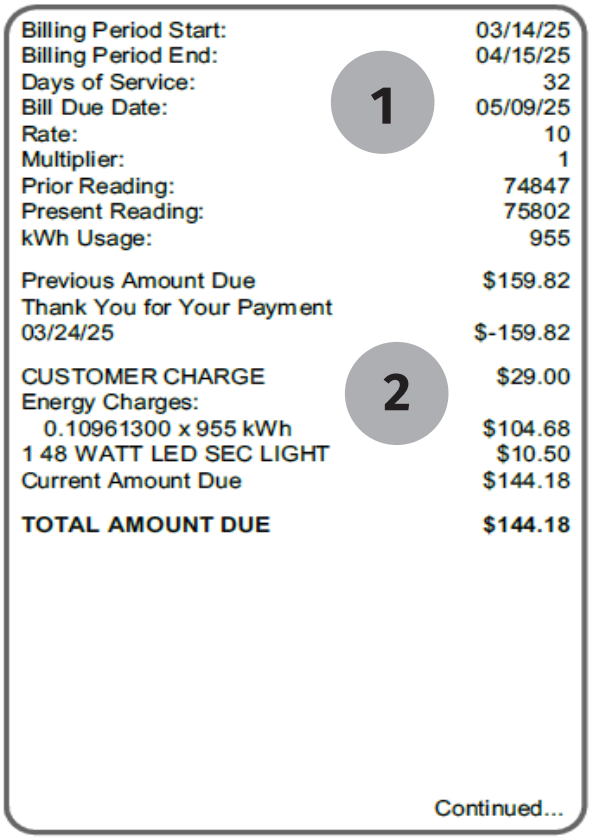
Understanding a Basic Residential Bill



1. Here you will find factors that contribute to the bill calculations, including the date the cycle began and ended, number of days included in the cycle, the applicable rate, & multiplier. You'll also see your prior and present meter readings, and the difference between the two. The difference is the kilowatt hour (kWh) usage you're being charged for this billing period. There is also a spot for a demand charge IF a member is on a rate that incurs these.

2. This section shows how the total balance was calculated. The first factor is the Customer Charge, which is $29.00 for Residential and is a fixed charge. Next, is the per kWh Energy Charge. This charge is a base charge of $0.10961300.

If you have a security light, that charge will also be shown in this section. The current amount due, previous amount due, and any previous payments made will follow.

Service Charges and Other Fees

The Customer Charge is considered a minimum facility charge and does not include any kilowatt usage.

Beginning June 8, 2025, a 2.45% convenience fee will be applied to credit & debit card payments. This change will help us cover the rising costs of payment processing.

Levelized Billing

Levelized billing is a system that averages your monthly bills on a continual basis. This averaging smoothes out the extreme seasonal variations, both highs and lows, to produce a more levelized amount each month. To be eligible for Levelized Billiing you must complete a Levelized Billing form and be willing and eligible to be set up on automatic bank draft.
